

Douglas Long

In order to create effective rules for oil fracking water reclamation, you need to know all the chemicals that are used in the fracking water. Otherwise you are just poisoning us and the environment.

If you are unable to get this information, then fracking water remains a highly hazardous water and needs to be regarded legally as hazardous to human life and the environment.

Please extend the public comment period by 30 calendar days.