

Kelly Moore

We do not have the ability to test for years to come, medical issues that this may cause from all forms of the food chain that may consume this water. There is not enough research on living plants or animals to be able to safely say that this will not cause severe abnormalities or death. Between using the water for plants to use, the animals that eat those plants or the runoff into our streams, there are too many risks involved. Please do not use this water, no matter how many times you think you are cleaning it. Please keep it in tubing to cool data centers or washing recycling off before processing or something that keeps it away from consumption.