

Anonymous Anonymous

This is a really bad idea. It will not only contaminate the surrounding environment, but contaminate the crops it would water as well. The idea would not be healthy for people, land, soil, animals, or plants. Also, depending on how often the contaminated water is used, it could cause lots of farm land to possibly be too contaminated to be used for future food production use, causing the loss of farm land and income for local farmers who are already struggling.