My comment is that this produced water should be thoroughly tested regularly and frequently. Since Texas is the state with the most produced water to deal with it should have a plan in place that protects our water sources and farmlands. I have not been impressed with TCEQ's oversight of environmental issues in the past and feel that they are way too industry friendly. If I understand correctly this water contains heavy metals, salts, fracking chemicals and other contaminants that we would not want contaminating our farmland.
