

Kay Hill

If the water is so wonderfully clean, how about using it to cool data centers? Sounds like a win win proposition instead of poisoning our food. If it isn't good enough to cool computers, surely it's not safe for human consumption on our food supply.