

Edward Main

Produced water contains known and unknown pollutants, including unknowable variation in the concentration of known and unknown pollutants. The uncontrollable variation in pollutants in produced water makes it unsuitable for land application.

In short, land application of produced water is indistinguishable from an uncontrolled spill of produced water.

Prohibit land application of produced water.