

Logan Hill

The current state of this proposal does not have adequate language regarding how TCEQ will ensure spreading treated oil-field wastewater stays within the internationally recognized limits for safe treated industrial waste meant for reuse. While I do not think moving oversight of this from Texas Rail Road Commission to the TCEQ is inherently flawed, I do think more work, evidence, and technical information needs to be provided before expanding the use of unproven experimental uses of treated oilfield waste water on crops.